

Look around and admire the profound beauty before you. There is even greater beauty than your eyes can see, or have yet to behold.

Because of such beauty, you are perplexed by the evil minds and deeds of some humans against others. For no understandable reason innocent humans are slaughtered on our planet every day. We hear of children brutalized and enslaved, our women raped and killed, all to satisfy the inexplicable urges of some deranged humans among us.

How is it possible, you ask? What could conceivably motivate such evil and cruelty against our fellow man? Experts continue to struggle daily, and search for an answer to this tragic dilemma. Society ignores the signs of these vicious humans, and the situation gets worse each day. What can caring humans do to reverse a growing brutal trend?

Caring and kind hearted people must unite against those who commit atrocious acts against innocent victims. We cannot tolerate evil deeds or behavior. We must take swift aggressive action against those who pursue the course of evil, and severe punishment will discourage others. Standing on the sidelines and merely vocally condemning it, is no longer acceptable. Swift physical action will stop the perpetrators before their evil ways expand. They cannot be allowed to hide behind faith or culture, as an excuse for the evil torment of others. Neither religious, political beliefs, nor racial bias justify brutal acts. So long as society tolerates even minor infractions, the door will only open wider with time. We must do whatever is necessary to protect the future of the human race.

Isn't it time we got started and implemented the laws needed to stop human atrocities? To delay further will merely result in more deaths and abuse of the innocent. It is not a problem to ignore, or which will correct itself. It is up to the good people of the world to put a stop to brutal sickness.